Imprisoned Belgian Miners
Cannot Be Rescued.

THIRTY-THREE BODIES FOUND

Five Bodies Out in the Fatal Pit, Increasing the Horror—The Death List Now Estimated at 215.

BRUSSELS, March 12.—Thirty-three bodies have been recovered from the Anderlecht colliery, in which the terrible explosion occurred Friday. There has been little if any abatement in the excitement in and around Charleroi. All night long hundreds of men, women and children kept their drowsy watch at the pit mouth, hoping for the best, yet almost knowing their hope was without reason. Many pitiable scenes have been witnessed as wives and children have recognized among the bodies recovered the features of some dear ones, distorted and blackened by the sheet of scorching flames that had enveloped them.

Fire Adds to the Horror.

The calamity increases in horror. The pit is now burning and smoke and flame bar the rescuers in their work of rescue. It is feared now that not less than 240 miners have perished, including a large number of women, of whom there were many employed in the mine.

It has been ascertained that 270 persons were working in the mine at the time of the explosion. Most of them were at work in the two galleries where the greatest damage was done. One of these galleries is 450 and the other 500 yards below the surface.

All Must Be Dead.
Mining experts acquainted with the Anderlecht workings say that every person who was working in the lower gallery must be dead, and few are expected to be rescued alive from the upper gallery, which is filled with deadly gases.

The total of the death toll is estimated at 215. Of this number it is estimated that 170 were burned alive.

The bodies that have been recovered were covered with thick, black dust, which, in some instances, had been blown deep in the skin. As they were taken into the office they were placed upon straw that had been spread on the floor, and the faces were then placed as far as possible to allow of identification. Many of the faces, however, were entirely unrecognizable.
